Mitigating Environmental Impact

Collaborating with Kadoorie Farm & Botanical Garden to support and advance their “Wood Recycling Programme” as part of our ambition to run carbon-neutral events.

Strives to recycle wood debris generated from routine tree works through investing in a biochar machine, which converts bulky, rotten or diseased wood into valuable biochar, a soil amendment that benefits the soil and plant growth.

Mitigating Environmental Impact

For our 2024 emissions equivalent contribution, KFBCG will additionally run their biochar machine, starting from February 2025. Each run will convert 5–6 tonnes of feedstock into approximately 1.5 tonnes of biochar, which is equivalent to approximately 3 tonnes of additional atmospheric carbon to be removed.

Within this 1.5-2-year cycle, an estimated 150 tonnes of carbon can be sequestered. The whole project complies with the “Methodology for Biochar Utilization in Soil and Non-soil Applications” published by Verra, who manages the world’s leading voluntary carbon markets program, the Verified Carbon Standard (VCS) Program.
